> EDITED BY DR. T. D. JONES.

We call the attention of our readers to the Address of the Native American Committee to the citizens of New Orleans, the commencement of which will be found on the second page. We commend it to the reading of every one.

The Bill for taking the next census contains in which it can be procured, and, if properly executed, will be very useful: But there is one We may possibly over-estimate the importance and at the same time the number of aliens resito take the census, which would at once point what had become of the money. But all in vain, this out; and the labor would be comparatively very light. As merely statistical information, disconnected entirely with all social matters if Gen. Van Ness to the bank, and was again closely possible, it seems to us this would be valuable as showing the increase of the population from its own natural progress, as distinguished from the increase from accidental causes. Without this it is impossible to form any proximate estimate of that natural increase; for we know that the immi- amount of the difficit, the defaulting clerk made a gration for a few years past has greatly increased; confession that he had taken the fifty thousand dollars and given it to Mr. A. W. Goodrich, a but we have no data by which it can be calculated. A great object in taking a census is, undoubtedly, to ascertain not only the fact of in- was then thought advisable to arrest Mr. Goodcrease, but the means by which that increase has rich, and he was soon afterwards discovered by been produced. It is not sufficient to know only the Deputy Marshal at a Resectory, and conducted that we have a million more of inhabitants, than Mr. Orme, on being told by Gen. Van Ness that we had at the last census. We should also know he had the $50,000 given to him by Mr. Orme. whence that million is derived, and of what it is and the latter having confirmed this statement, he composed. If the strength of a country depends (Goodrich) admitted that he had the money, and in any considerable degree on the unity of feeling taking a large roll of bank-notes cut of his coat and interest in its inhabitants, on their attachment to the country and its institutions, and if that community of interest and feeling and that attachment ed to the sum of $49,800-two hundred dollars are produced and cemented by natural causes, by only being deficient. After some little conversaeducation and habit, it surely must be of the utmost importance to know how far these causes may reasonably be supposed to prevail among request of Mr. Goodrich, that the bank would its inhabitants. Now we maintain that the attachment which a man feels for the home of his birth and his boyhood, is almost ineradicable; and that the regard which he feels for the institutions of the country in which he may live, can reasonably exist only in a knowledge of their beneficent influence. Consequently he cannot feel the community of interest and attachment which form the bonds of union in society, until he has become latter with receiving that some of money, knowa denizen enjoying its benefits. A man may un- ing it to have been stolen. Both warrants were doubtedly be hired to fight for pay, but he must placed in the hands of H. B. Robertson, who, in know and feel his stake in the country before he a short time, arrested Goodrich; Dennis G. Orme fights for love. A man may fight for the love of freedom. But it is the abstract freedom of which charge against A. W. Goodrich, in the presence he knows nothing. He must live under and enjoy of the President of the bank and the Cashier, the benefits of a regulated liberty, before he ha who were witnesses for the United States, (the zards his life and fortune for its protection. In H. Bradley being counsel for Mr. A. W. Goodthis point of view it strikes us as a matter of pri- rich,) the magistrate required the accused to give mary importance to know how our country is bail in the sum of $2,000 for his appearance at filled, by whom, whence they come, and whether the next Criminal Court for the county of Washthey are of us.

Besides, it is important to know whither the main body of the immigration tends. Whether it is principally confined to our large cities, or goes his defence, denied that he had received or obtainto the western country. Whether they are spread ed the money with any criminal intention; that, abroad and mingled up with the mass of the inhabitants, or hang together and form little communities of their own. Whether, in fine, they attempt to cast off their old homes and habits, and identify themselves with our people, or by keeping separate and distinct, still to keep alive the recollection of their native land, and to transmit to their children their old attachments.

We have often said that our great object is to produce in this country a purely American feeling; and we deem it of the utmost importance that this feeling should be universal. We must think and believe and maintain that we have the man; and that we have the finest country, in its time. broad extent, that heaven ever smiled upon. We have said again and again that these results can intense public curiosity as to correct erroneous be produced only by making the People understand the frame of the government, and the character of the laws, and by making every inhabitant feel the importance of his stake in the country. If there exist among us separate communities, in which the language and manners and habits and customs of different lands prevail, we ought to know it; and to see how far the evil extends, so that we may endeavor, by degrees at least, to provide some remedy for it.

Besides, no man whose attention has not been directly drawn to this subject, has ever dreamed of the numbers of aliens now residing in this country, or of the vast multitude which have come into it within a very few years; and that cer- tion on the part of the French to bombard Buenos tainly is information which every one ought to have within his reach. We trust that some member of Congress will think of this matter, and ticed that those great war-heroes who are always hot yet too late.

ROBBERY AT THE BANK OF THE METROPOLIS Our attention was painfully attracted by reading in the Globe of Wednesday afternoon the following:

"We understand that Mr Orme, a teller in the Bank " of the Metropolis, took fifty thousand dollars from the bank. The suspicions of the Cashier being awakened by appearances, he counted the money, and discovering the deficit, charged the Teller, who confessed every thing, and pointed to the person who had it in possession, Mr. Goodrich, a clerk in one of the Departments.

Mr. G. was arrested and the money recaptured." The circumstances of this robbery, which was the general and almost exclusive subject of conversation in this city during last Wednesday, were, as far as we have been enabled to collect them from the most authentic sources to which we had access, as follows: Mr. Dennis G. Orme, a teller in the Bank of the Metropolis, very respectably connected, and inheriting a handsome patrimony, having not been many and valuable provisions for obtaining much in attendance at the bank at the usual hour last statistical information. It is the cheapest mode Tuesday morning, and from his conduct on the previous day in absenting himself for some time from the counter, and appearing during the mornpoint in which we think it might be very advantageously amended, and we are surprised that it cashier, that all was not right, and his teller's acshould have escaped the attention of Congress, count being compared with the cash on hand, it was quickly discovered that there was a deficit of of this subject, but it does seem to us to be a mat- mediately on this discovery being made, it was not less a sum than fifty thousand dollars. Imter of great public importance to ascertain the communicated by the Cashier to General Van Ness, number of our citizens of Foreign origin, and how the President of the bank, and the Directors. The long they have respectively been in the country; former, though indisposed, went to the house of Mr. Orme (who was said to be sick in bed) and obtained an interview, in which, after stating to ding among us, and how long they have been Mr. Orme the deficit in his cash, the President here respectively. A tabular statement could used every argument he could think of to induce easily be prepared for the officer commissioned Mr. Orme to account for the deficit, and to say Mr. Orme persisted in denying what had become

> After this interview, Mr. Orme accompanied interrogated by the President and some of the Directors, when he still persisted in denying all knowledge of the deficit, and of the way in which the money had been disposed of; until, the Marshal of the District of Columbia being introduced, and process having been served for the clerk in the War Department. This confession was made rather late on Tuesday evening. It pocket, gave them up, saying, "There is the Having obtained the money, it was counted by the Cashier, who found that it amounttion between the President of the Bank and Mr. Orme and Mr. Goodrich, in order to obtain the $200 still deficient, the President agreed, at the dismiss all further proceedings for the recovery of the money, and Mr. Orme and Mr. Goodrich were allowed to depart.

On Wednesday, however, about noon, at affidavit having been made before Justice Thompson, warrants were issued in the name of the United States against Dennis G. Orme and A. W. Goodrich, charging the former with feloniously taking and carying away the sum of $50,000, the property of the Bank of the Metropolis, and the could not be found.

After a long and patient investigation of the ington; which bail having been given about 10 o'clock at night, Mr. Goodrich was discharged, after being under examination about five hours. It is only just to add, that Mr. Goodrich, in finding Orme in a frolic, and crazy, as he could be proved to be, when under the influence of liquor, he had merely kept the money until Orme got out of his frolic; and that he was prevented from returning the money to the bank (which he sincerely regretted,) through the fear that he might do Orme some injury with his employers, and in the hope that he would speedily get right again. Goodrich also said he had searched for Orme during the day in his usual haunts, but could not find him.

Two or three witnesses were called, who testified that Dennis G. Orme, when intoxicated, was "almost crazy," and excited in a most unusual and extraordinary manner. One of them swore she saw him on Monday night, somewhat best form of government, and the best system of intoxicated, with a large roll of bank notes carelaws ever yet devised for the social relations of lessly in his hat, and acting very strangely at the

Since writing the preceding notice, (which we have detailed more than usual, as well to gratify representations of the case,) we understand from good authority that Mr. Dennis G. Orme intends to surrender to the civil power, and give bail for his appearance to answer to the charge against him.
